Ⅳ 次の英文は、オー・ヘンリーが書いた小説『賢者の贈り物』の一節である。クリスマスに間近に控えたデラ（Della）とその夫ジム（Jim）は仲良く暮らしている。デラは長く美しい髪をした女性である。英文を読み、設問に答えなさい。

One dollar and eighty-seven cents. That was all. Della counted it three times. One dollar and eighty-seven cents. And the next day would be Christmas.

(1) There was nothing to do but fall on the bed and cry. So Della did.

While the lady of the home is slowly growing quieter, we can look at the home. Furnished rooms at a cost of eight dollars a week. There is little more to say about them.

In the hall below was a letter-box too small to hold a letter. There was an electric bell, but it couldn't make a sound. Also there was a name beside the door: "Mr. James Dillingham Young."

First, Mr. James Dillingham Young was being paid thirty dollars a week. Now, he was being paid only twenty dollars a week.

Della finished her crying and cleaned the marks of it from her face. She stood by the window and looked out with no interest. Tomorrow would be Christmas Day, and she had only one dollar and eighty-seven cents with which to buy Jim a gift. She had put aside* as much as she could for months, with this result. Twenty dollars a week is not much. Everything had cost more than she had expected.

Only one dollar and eighty-seven cents to buy a gift for Jim.

There was a small mirror between the windows of the room. Suddenly she turned from the window and (2) stood before the mirror. Her eyes were shining brightly*, but her face had lost its color. Quickly she pulled down her hair and let it fall to its complete length.

Della and Jim were very proud of two things which they owned. One thing was Jim's gold watch. Jim knew that no king had anything so valuable. The other thing was Della's hair. Her hair was very long and was more beautiful than any queen's jewels* and gifts.

Once Della stopped for a moment and stood still* while a tear or two ran down her face. She moved quickly out the door and down to the street. Where she stopped, the sign said, "Mrs. Sofronie. Hair Articles of All Kinds."

"Will you buy my ( 3 )?" asked Della.

"I buy ( 3 )," said Mrs. Sofronie. "Twenty dollars."

"Give it to me quick," said Della.

The next two hours seemed to fly. She was going from one shop to another, to find a gift for Jim. She found it at last. It was a gold watch chain*. It was good enough for Jim's watch. She paid twenty-one dollars for it. And she hurried home with the chain and ( 4 ).

When Della arrived home, she started to try to cover <sup>(5)</sup>the sad marks of what she had done.

At seven, Jim's dinner was ready. Just then, she heard his step in the hall and her face lost color for a moment. She said to herself, "Please God, make him think ( 6 )."

When Jim saw Della, His eyes looked strangely at Della, and there was an expression that she could not understand.

Della went to him. "Jim, dear," she cried, "don't look at me like that. I had my hair cut off and sold it. My hair will grow again."

"You say your hair is gone?" he said.

"You don't have to look for it," said Della. "It's sold, I tell you – sold and gone, too. It's the night before Christmas, boy. Be good to me, because I sold it for you."

Jim put his arms around his Della. And from inside his coat, he took something tied in paper. He threw it upon the table.

"I want you to understand me, Della," he said. "But if you'll open that, you may know what I felt when I came in."

When Della pulled off the paper, <sup>(7)</sup>she gave a cry of joy; and then a change to tears.

For there lay The Combs* – the combs that Della had seen in a shop window and loved for a long time. And now they were hers, but her hair was gone.

But she held them to her heart, and at last was able to look up and say: "My hair grows so fast, Jim!"

Jim had not yet seen his beautiful gift. She held it out to him in her open hand. The gold seemed to shine softly.

"I hunted all over town to find it. You'll have to look at your watch a hundred times a day now. Give me your watch and I want to see how they look together."

"Della," said he, "let's put our Christmas gifts away and keep them a while. They're too nice to use now. ( 8 ). And now I think we should have our dinner."
